Nevertheless, the resources and knowledge based on an inductive methodology suggested in these guides can be further extended and applied for other relevant development of skills and competences.

METHODOLOGIES / GUIDELINES – PEDAGOGICAL STRATEGY DATE

Erasmus+ KA2 Strategic Partnerships for Vocational Education and Training
TSEMY – Training for Sustainable Employment of Youth and Young Adults
Project number: 2020-1-PT01-KA202-79621

The main purpose of the TSEMY Training approach is to help students become independent, strategic learners. Whole TSEMY Training Program was designed with the main purpose to provide independent online learning for any student across Europe but also groups/mixed teams in various learning environments (such as hybrid learning, flipped classroom, blended learning).

Strategies proposed within the guide are learner centered and varied, being accompanied by online resources. The guide provides extended examples and suggestions for each module.

By the help of this Guide, TSEMY project will contribute to the harmonization of norms and practices in the area of professional training of unemployed young people from a perspective beyond the national borders of the countries involved. It will enhance the development and improvement of skills and knowledge at the local level, with influences of policies and specific contexts of guidance&training. It will encourage the evolution of formal and non-formal learning by using modern Open Educational Resources, based on the needs of the target groups and adjusted to the reality of nowadays.

The creation of such responses, resources and training/education/methodologies and approaches is what EU society needs now and in the future.

IO5 - Training Methodology Guide for Young Trainees

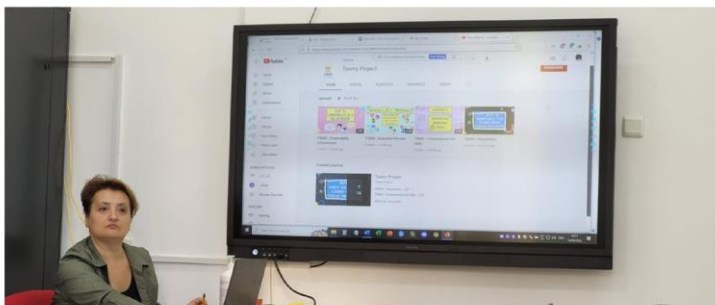

These training resources for young trainees aim to provide guidance for the skills, knowledge and pedagogical resources developed within TSEMY curriculum. The information is presented through a direct articulation with the surroundings, companies and business market in order to have a practical, real component and training applied within active organizations and with specific recruitment needs.

In order to have the maximum impact for the young trainees, the coordinator of this result, Cesur (ES) decided to design and present 5 practical videos that include the main features of the project resources and the main benefits for the trainees: What will you learn from TSEMY project? Competences and skills, How will this training program help you in the labour market?, How are you going to be evaluated? and How does the e-learning platform works?

The videos are short and presented in an attractive manne, making a practical link and collaboration between the continuous component of education, training, mentoring and the reality of the employment process in existing organizations and in the job market itself. They can be found in the Moodle platform but also in the YouTube Channel of the project.
